Baptist Pastor Prays For Government

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 11 (P)—A segregationist Baptist pastor prayed tonight for the removal from Little Rock of federal troops who he said are "surrounding one of our city schools, without authority, and endangering the lives of our citizens."

The Rev. M. L. Moser Jr., made the statement in a prayer prepared for a meeting to which persons of all faiths were invited. He is missionary pastor of the Central Baptist church, the site of the meeting.

The Rev. Mr. Moser did not mention nine Negro students who are attending Central High School in his prepared text. But he and 23 other Baptist ministers said, in issuing a call for the prayer meeting, that the only solution to the city's racial crisis "is for the nine Negro children to return to Horace Mann High School where they legally and morally belong."

Horace Mann is a Negro high school. They now are going to Central High classes under the protection of federal troops ordered into Little Rock by President Eisenhower.

Series

Another series of prayer meetings will be held in some 85 city churches of all faiths tomorrow morning. Sponsors say these services are designed only to seek divine guidance for a solution of the situation.

The Rev. M. L. Moser Sr., said in remarks prepared for tonight's meeting that the services tomorrow were called by a group of Jewish, Catholic and Protestant churches.

"Jews do not believe in the deity of the Lord Jesus Christ," he said. "Catholics, while believing in the deity of the Lord, pray through the Virgin Mary. Most of the Protestants involved in the call are of the modernistic persuasion. Modernists do not believe in the Virgin birth or the deity of the Lord Jesus Christ. We felt, therefore, that since prayer must be made... in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, that a prayer meeting for those that are conservative in their beliefs about the deity of Christ should hold a separate prayer meeting."

Statement

The younger Rev. Moser told newsmen the Baptist ministers sponsoring tonight's meeting "believe that the Bible teaches segregation" of the races. The pastors are affiliated with various branches of the Baptist church.

"We are beginning to lose our freedoms," he said in his prepared text, "and even at this moment we find federal troops surrounding one of our city schools, without authority, and endangering the lives of our citizens."

"We know, Our Father, that force is never the answer. Men's hearts and minds cannot be changed by bayonets, tanks, machine guns, or any other type of weapon."

The scene at the school remained serene today, as it has been all week.

The attendance was 1,761; absentees numbered 202. The latter figure was slightly higher than yesterday's, but much below the peak of about 750 during the height of the tension.

Those absent today included one of the six Negro girls, Mrs. L. C. Bates, Arkansas president of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, said the missing girl was Melba Pattillo, 15. She said the girl has the flu.

Another influenza victim is Gov. Faubus.

Brucker wrote Russell that he had now decided to release the details, "since it would appear that they are no longer likely to exacerbate the current situation in Little Rock."

Copy

Russell had asked for "a copy of the directive alerting Army units throughout the South for possible use in other school integration cases."

Brucker replied that, "No alert directive, as that term is understood in military terminology, has ever been issued for the purpose referred to in your request."

Brucker said he himself assumes complete responsibility, acting under orders from President Eisenhower, for sending troops to Little Rock. He said Taylor considers himself responsible for military orders directing the readiness and conduct of troops.

Thus, the secretary said, there is no need to identify subordinates who carried out orders.

MacDonough Wins Top 'Fireman Of Year' Award

A PANEL of three highly-qualified and impartial judges yesterday named Richard C. MacDonough, Marshalls Creek, Monroe County's Volunteer Fireman of the Year.

Second place winner in the contest sponsored by The Daily Record was Leroy Kaiser of the Delaware Water Gap company.

The contest is designed to dramatize for the public the indispensable role played within our community by the volunteer firemen of local companies.

Judges were members of the Northeastern Pennsylvania Volunteer Firemen's Federation. They made their decision at a Federation meeting in Montdale, Scott Township.

MacDonough, who at 34 is a serious-minded man whose dedicated service to his fire company has made it one of the best-equipped and best-trained in the Commonwealth's rural areas, reacted to the news that he had been named first winner of The Daily Record award with typical humility.

Said MacDonough:

"I'm grateful for the honor, of course. But this is not a one-man award. Let's not forget that."

"Because our company—along with all the others in Monroe County—is made up of many men who give their time and efforts for the good of the community and the fire company."

"Nobody in a fire company does the work that has to be done for any other reason than the good of the community where he lives. There are many, many men in the county who deserve the award as much or more than I do. But it's quite an honor and I'm happy to know the judges have honored me."

MacDonough's wife was informed by telephone by a Daily Record reporter that her husband had won the top honor. She said that she was "really thrilled and overjoyed" at the news.

"I know I won't dare say much in praise of him because you'll think it's because he's my husband, but he deserves it. He's worked very, very hard for that fire company and I couldn't be happier that he's won the award," Mrs. MacDonough said.

The MacDonoughs have three children. He is a clerk in a Marshalls Creek general store. In nominating him as its candidate, the Marshalls Creek company summed up MacDonough's devotion to fire-fighting needs in his community with: "This man has done so many projects that we could not possibly recall them all."

Kaiser, the second-place winner, told The Record last night by phone: "I think it's a great honor to be named second in the contest. I'm very proud of that. And I think the Daily Record should be commended for running this contest and helping to tell the true story of volunteer firemen."

Most unusual aspect of Kaiser's candidacy was that he was a relatively new member of the Water Gap company. He became a member in October, 1956. Since that time, however, the company noted in nominating him "this candidate has without a doubt given more time and effort to improvement of the company... than most members have in several years."

Nominations for the award were made by each fire company in the area. In announcing the names of winners last night James Anthony, chairman of the contest for Monroe County Firemen's Assn., praised the area companies for their cooperation in naming candidates.

Anthony said that response to the friendly competition had been excellent. He also thanked, on behalf of the county organization, Horace G. Heller, general manager of The Daily Record, and the newspaper itself "for helping local firemen to celebrate Fire Prevention Week in this way."

Judges in the contest were: Carl Miller, Clarks Summit; Reginald Ellis, West Pittston; and Arthur Hughes, Covington Township. The three men represented each of the three types of fire company: combined city and rural; city company and rural unit.

A trophy will be presented to MacDonough next Thursday at a meeting of Monroe County Firemen's Assn. at Mount Pocono fire hall.

U.S. Expects Company For 'Sputnik'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (P)—Sputnik may have company very soon.

A State Department spokesman said today the department wouldn't be surprised if the Russians launch another earth satellite at any time.

Press officer Jameson Parker declined to elaborate on his statement elicited at a news conference, other than to say he was not peaking hypothetically. This suggests his statement might be based on secret intelligence.

There has been speculation that the Russians would choose Nov. 7, the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, to put a second satellite in orbit. Parker's comment was taken to mean the firing could come sooner.

March

The first American satellite is scheduled to go up next March, after some test firings in December.

Russia's baby moon was a week old today.

New calculations at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology indicated the satellite was being outdistanced in its race around the earth by the third stage of the rocket which launched it.

This rocket section, also in orbit, was estimated to be circling the earth once every 96.03 minutes—and to be picking up speed. An earlier estimate put the satellite's orbiting time at 96.1 minutes.

The whole question of speed in these circumstances is a relative thing. Yesterday the scientists working at MIT concluded the rocket was pulling ahead of Sputnik because it had lost altitude and was making a smaller orbit. The rocket would theoretically continue to gain on Sputnik until it reached an altitude where friction from the denser atmosphere, slowing it down, would offset the advantage of a shorter trip around the world.

The situation can be compared roughly to two horses racing on a circular track. Even though they were galloping at the same speed throughout, the one on the inside—nearest the rail—would win because it had the shortest distance to travel.

Tracking

Dr. J. Allen Hynek, who is in charge of the optical tracking program for the Smithsonian Institution's Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., said the orbit of the rocket was worked out in 21 seconds by MIT's electronic "brain."

But days of observations and preliminary calculations were required before the big computer could go to work. The machine operates at the rate of 40,000 calculations per second.

Other data produced by the computer showed the rocket was swinging in an orbit which brought it as close to the earth as 143 miles and as far away as 583.

"These elements still are being checked," Hynek said, "and cannot be regarded as final as the orbit is constantly changing minutely."

He estimated the rocket, which is larger than the true satellite and gives off a brighter reflection, has two or three more weeks of life left.

Canada Set For Visit By Queen

OTTAWA, Oct. 11 (P)—Floodlights, illuminating this dominion capital's gray stone and spired Parliament Hill, flashed on at dusk tonight, marking the beginning of Canada's celebrations for the arrival of Queen Elizabeth II from England tomorrow.

The 100-year-old dominion capital was a busy place the last hours before the Queen's arrival by plane at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow at flag-draped Uplands Airport. Around the city rehearsals were in progress—bands massed, children sang their songs, a picked troupe of Royal Canadian Mounted Police practiced riding with the landau which will carry the Queen to open Parliament.

The Union Jack and the red Canadian ensign fluttered from almost every telephone pole in the city. Along the 15-mile route from the airport to Rideau Hall, the governor-general's mansion—a road lighted by the scarlet, soft greens and yellows of the brilliant autumn foliage—workmen were picking up bits of papers, radio and television crews were building temporary mobile platforms for broadcasting equipment. "No parking signs" marked the route.

Teamsters Request New Court Order

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (P)—A group of New York Teamsters members today asked for a federal court order barring James R. Hoffa from taking over the presidency of the giant, scandal-ridden labor union.

Attorneys for the group conferred twice in chambers during the day with U.S. Dist. Judge F. Dickinson Letts on the plea, but the court put off a ruling until Monday.

"I won't have anything to say until then," Judge Letts told reporters. It was indicated that the judge asked the attorneys to revise the form of a proposed temporary restraining order they had prepared for his signature. There was no indication one way or another how the court will rule.

The attorneys—from the Washington and New York law firm of Dogg, Kaplan & Schmidt—said they also will go into the federal appeals court Monday morning to have the Teamsters Union cited for contempt of court.

Judge Letts two weeks ago issued a preliminary injunction against holding the Teamsters convention. The appeals court set this aside, but with the warning that the union should not go ahead with its convention if illegal delegates were seated.

The contempt proceedings would be on the argument that the convention was held with illegal delegates, in the face of the court warning.

Hoffa, 44-year-old Midwest Teamsters boss, was overwhelmingly elected president over two opposing candidates at last week's convention.

The protesting Teamster members, along with Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) of the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee, have charged many of the convention delegates were seated, despite their having been illegally chosen, to rig the election for Hoffa.

McClellan said delegation selection in many cases was scandalous.

Dave Beck, the retiring union president said in New York today he was ready to resign and leave the president's chair open immediately to Hoffa. Beck said this will probably take place next Tuesday, provided Hoffa wins a delay in a court trial due to start in New York that day.

The latest crisis began 11 days ago when Parliament voted no confidence in Premier Maurice Bourges-Maunory's program for some homerule in rebellious Algeria.

Conservative Bourges-Maunory is a Radical-Socialist—conservative—party man. Coty first called Socialist ex-Premier Guy Mollet to try, Mollet, who had a postwar premiership record tenure of 16 months, gave up last Sunday. Coty then called in ex-Premier Rene Pleven, Democratic-Socialist. Pleven failed to get support from the Bourges-Maunory group for a wide coalition government and gave up two days ago.

The predictions here tonight were that Pinay would founder on an absence of Socialist support for any rightist candidate.

Bourges-Maunory and his Cabinet continue as a caretaker government.

The White House meeting followed an announcement last night by the defense secretary that testing of both the Air Force Thor and the Army Jupiter missile will be continued into next year.

Former defense chief Charles Wilson had expected that a decision would be made by this time to choose either the Air Force or the Army missile or merge the two into a single project. But last night's announcement revealed that the Pentagon has decided that more tests, at an accelerated rate, are needed before a decision can be reached.

The test at the Cape Canaveral Missile Center came during a White House conference on the missile program. In this meeting were President Eisenhower, Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy, Dep. Defense Secretary Donald Quarles, and William Holaday, the Pentagon missile chief. The session was held prior to a regular

Romulo's Son Dies In Crash

MANILA, Oct. 11 (P)—Carlos Romulo Jr. and at least one American were killed in an explosion and crash of a twin-engine plane south of Manila today. All five persons in the plane perished.

The elder son of the Philippine ambassador to the United States was traveling with a law partner, lawyer Allen O'Gorman of New York, when the plane exploded over Tanauan, Batangas Province.

They were with three other passengers and the pilot, identified as a Col. Gunn.

Identity of the other passengers was not disclosed immediately. O'Gorman, 44, was president of a Mahogany lumber company and related industries in the Philippines and head of a branch of his New York law firm here.

O'Gorman served as counsel to the Philippine government when it was granted independence by the United States in 1946.

The elder Romulo was attending U.N. sessions in New York when notified of the accident. He hurried to Washington where he was informed from here by another son Gregorio that the death of the elder son had been confirmed.

President Eisenhower sent Romulo a message saying: "Dear Carlos: I was shocked to read a news item this afternoon reporting the death of your son in an airplane accident."

"I cannot tell you how deeply sorry I am that you should suffer such a tragic loss. Mrs. Eisenhower joins me in proffering our sympathy to you and Mrs. Romulo in this hour. Sincerely, Dwight D. Eisenhower."

SPARKY SAYS

Keep Matches Away from Children!

Don't give fire a place to start!

NO. DR. MOON'S not holding a flying saucer from outer space in his hand. It's a model of the red blood cell enlarged 100 trillion times. "Red River of Life," the newest Moody Bible Institute film, shows how this small but vital wonder is the key to the most amazing transportation system ever devised.

First Baptist Church To Show 'Red River Of Life' Movie On Tuesday Night

A LOOK at the inside of a beating heart and a personally guided tour through the 100,000 mile maze of blood vessels in the human body are in store for audiences seeing the newest film "Red River of Life" just released by Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

This film will be shown at the First Baptist Church, E. Broad and N. Courtland, East Stroudsburg, next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

This fresh and dramatic approach to the story of the heart, the red blood cell and the circulatory system is the fruit of four years of intensive work by Dr. Irwin A. Moon and the staff at Moody Institute of Science, MBI's film-producing branch in West Los Angeles, California.

Inspired by the biblical phrase from the Old Testament, "The life of the flesh is in the blood" (Leviticus 17:11), scientists at MIS set out to explore the almost unknown story behind the mystery of life. They found that the human body is quite similar to an automobile—except for the fact that it has 30 trillion cylinders; that the human heart is the most powerful and precise pump for its size that can be found anywhere, and that the red blood cell is the key to one of the most amazing transportation systems ever devised.

In the film Dr. Moon uses an automobile engine to explain what makes the human machine tick. They are similar, he says, because they both need fuel, oxygen and removal of exhaust or waste gases. In an automobile engine these functions are performed by separate systems—fuel, air intake and exhaust—while in the human body these are all performed through the bloodstream which acts as a combination fuel and exhaust.

The flying saucer shaped disk which makes this combination possible is the red blood cell. Were it a flat disk it wouldn't have the capacity needed to carry food and oxygen to the cells. Were it a sphere it would be too slow in absorbency to take on its load. As it is, the red blood cell, looking like a cross between a doughnut and a cracker, is just the thing needed to serve every cell in the body via the plunging, twisting, turning course of the bloodstream.

Rev. C. Clyde Levergood, pastor of the church, will use as his subject "The Citizens of Two Worlds."

Text will be taken from one John 4:1; Scripture from the Gospel of St. John 17th chapter.

Music will be furnished by the Junior Choir and the soloist will be Peter Wyckoff. Luncheon will be served in the basement of the church at 12:15 p.m.

An informal service will be held at 2 a.m. with the Senior Choir of the First Presbyterian Church of Stroudsburg, furnishing the music under the direction of Vernon Imbt.

Mrs. Emory Stout will give the memorials and Mrs. Andrew Keiser will give a brief history and plans of the church.

At the service in the Kellersville Church, at 7:30 p.m., Rev. Levergood will use as his subject "The Holy Family."

Miss Nancy Knecht of Bethlehem will be the soloist accompanied by Mrs. Richard Thompson, organist of the Wesley Memorial Methodist Church, Bethlehem.

No service is scheduled in the Poplar Valley Church. The congregation will unite with the Cherry Valley Congregation.

Resurgence Noted In Missions

IN THE current history of religion observers have noted a vital resurgence of the "mission" or "revival" technique in all faiths.

During this past week and all through the coming seven days, Catholics in St. Matthew's Parish are taking part in their own mission. What exactly does a mission hope to accomplish? Is it a "new" technique? And is it a successful one?

The Rev. Silvio DeLuca, an East Stroudsburg man who went on to become this parish's first ordained priest in the Passionist Order, describes the mission as "an old but continually successful means of reaching men and women within their own religion."

The aims of a mission are basic and simple, if anything related to the instruction of human beings in the love of God can be termed "simple." A mission should, if it is a success, re-instruct members of a religion in the concepts and doctrines of their faith. It provides, Father DeLuca points out, a station for strength in the sometimes arid desert of everyday life.

Attendance at the local mission has been very good this week, the priest said. And from that attendance has come a growing eagerness on the part of more and more parish members to take part in added services within the church framework.

Little Different
A "mission," actually, is little different in Stroudsburg or East Stroudsburg from what it is in a deprived nation overseas. Its purpose is education and the encouragement of human beings in the practical living of a Christian life. "It's teaching people to put into practice, on a day to day level, all those things which they believe, as Christians and as believers in God's word," Father DeLuca says. He continues:

"In the Catholic Church, a mission constitutes a review of the religion. During the course of the arranged services—both morning and evening—the people get a clear, succinct summary of the things they are to believe and do and the things which will help them in all else that they do toward living a perfect Christian life. Too many people have only a vague notion of what religion means, what the Commandments require of us and, in pure fact, one of the difficulties of today is that people do not even understand the meaning and definition of ordinary words, let alone religious terms which describe religious truths."

"We cannot live as Christians should unless we have a blueprint. Being a true Christian is just like building a house. A good builder will have a strong set of plans, an outline of what he knows must be done, of what he wants. With this he must determine his materials, judge the amount of labor required and then estimate the cost. He must know these things if he is to construct a strong and lasting home."

True
"And this is true of faith. Which brings us to the inescapable fact that religion is not simply a feeling or sentiment. It is controlled action. And the control is set down by the rules of God who dictates to us and whom we must obey."

"Man must keep the commandments of God—but he cannot do it alone. Unless he uses help from God and prayer for everyone—regardless of creed, religion or belief, so long as they believe in God—a man is not using the structure of his faith fully."

"In a particular way during a mission, the commandments are explained in a clear, concise, interesting style with many examples and illustrations showing how the commandments fit into everyday life and wisely guide the thoughts, words, actions and motivations of every person so that they can gain merit for heaven."

"The total conclusion of a mission is to lead the people to attend."

40 Choir Gowns For Youngsters

THE LAST Two weeks have been extremely busy for a group of Cherub choir mothers and other seamstresses of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

With the largest group of Cherub choir members ever to have enrolled in this part of the music program of the church, new choir gowns were a necessity. Forty of them were made in the last two weeks by the group mentioned.

The Cherub choir is composed of boys and girls of ages four to seven. This is the youngest choir unit under the direction of Donna and Wallace Hornbrook, ministers of music. A fine group of the mothers of the Cherub choir serve as assistants to the program under the caption of "Choir Mothers."

Mrs. Glenn Miller and Mrs. Mary Shepps are the co-leaders of this group.

Dedication
A service of dedication for the new choir gowns will be a part of the morning worship tomorrow at 11 a.m. At this service the Cherub choir will sing for the first time in the Fall and Winter season. All other choirs will participate in the processional and recessional. The Cherub choir will also sing an anthem, directed by Hornbrook.

Rev. Harold C. Eaton, minister of the church, will preach tomorrow on the theme, "What On Earth Are You Doing?"

There will be a brief sermon for the children and a junior church for the Cherub choir. The kindergarten serving during church in the care of young pre-school children will be staffed this week by Mrs. Thomas Carmella, Mrs. Robert Ace and Mrs. Paul Shaffer.

The flowers in the altar vases this week are being presented by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Staples, in memory of mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hafler and sister, Mrs. Kathryn Possinger.

There will be no night service in this church Sunday night. The congregation will cooperate with the "Bible Study Conference" organized by the Board of Education of the Philadelphia Conference, to be held Oct. 13, 14 and 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the Stroudsburg Methodist Church. Dr. Ralph Decker, president of Wyoming Seminary, is the resource leader in this study.

Auxiliary To Serve Supper

DINGMANS FERRY — The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Delaware Township Volunteer Fire Co. will serve a benefit supper tonight at the American Legion Home on Route 209.

Roast turkey will provide the main course of the dinner, which will be served from 6 to 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

THE "BLACK SHEEP" OF OUR FAMILY

When Johnny started Sunday School . . .
the Devil thought he had his foot in the door.

The teachers must have been at their wit's end—but they never showed it. The Superintendent faced many a crisis—but always he was patient. The Pastor even smiled as he returned the confiscated pea-shooter. "You're not a bad shot, Johnny," he said!

Claire and I soon began to realize that Christians do turn the other cheek . . . in the Junior Department it's standard operating procedure.

TODAY, Johnny is a freshman in college. Every Sunday he attends the church of our faith near the campus. And, recently, he confided to me his ambitions:

He wants to become an engineer. Then, he wants to marry his childhood sweetheart, Jane. And as soon as they're settled, he wants to teach a class of "real gone" kids in the Junior Department.

Now Claire and I realize what the Church means in the life of the "black sheep"—of your family or ours!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Champions Dethroned

It's been a tough year for baseball in New York City.

Sure, the proud Yankees breezed through the American League season without too much trouble to nail down one more pennant.

But when they took on the National League champs, a bunch of upstart Braves from Milwaukee, the reigning aristocrats of baseball lacked that extra something to carry them through to another World Championship.

Baseball observers saw a touch of irony in the seventh and deciding game of the Series. With each team entering the finale with three victories, New York fans were hoping to see the Yankees display some of the superiority and alertness that had made them the class of the sport for so many years.

They waited in vain, however. Rather, they stayed to watch the inspired Braves play heads-up ball and take advantage of the rival team's misplays. It was the Yankees instead of their opponents who suffered from stage-fright.

This was not the first Series the Yankees had lost, of course. And it may not be the last. But coming right on the heels of two other developments, the dethroning of the Yankees was a bitter pill for New Yorkers.

The Giants had pulled stakes and planted their National League franchise in San Francisco. This was followed by the Brooklyn Dodgers' decision to move to Los Angeles. New York, for many, many years a three-team city, now found itself with only one club—the Yankees.

Under these circumstances, the Bombers' defeat at the hands of Milwaukee came as a severe blow to New Yorkers' civic pride and one that will not be forgotten easily.

Until a few years ago, baseball fans in this community could follow a first-hand the play of five major league teams, all within 90 miles of the Stroudsburgs. That number has since been reduced to two—the Yankees and the Philadelphia Phillies. Local sports followers would like to see New York regain a National League franchise, and we believe it will in a year or two. The world's largest city should leave no stone unturned to get back in the big time.

Accidents Fourth Leading Death Cause

Despite much progress in their prevention, accidents are still the fourth leading cause of death in this country.

This was the sad news relayed yesterday by Health Information Foundation, of New York City.

Accidental deaths rose last year to 95,000—an increase of 2,000—and injuries to 9,600,000—up 150,000. Financial losses rose $900,000,000 to $11,200,000,000.

The foundation noted that the number of accidental deaths has remained fairly constant since 1932, but death rates per 100,000 population have gone down 40 percent in the last half century. Recent medical advances have had much to do with the improvement.

Safety against accidents has achieved the greatest success where society has been able to bring its organized influence to bear, the foundation said. Where the individual himself must assume most of the responsibility for his own safety, progress has been slower.

Industrial deaths have declined sharply. Less improvement has been shown in the American home, where about 30,000 accidental deaths occur each year.

Although the 1956 motor-vehicle death toll, 40,000, was the largest in history, there are signs that automobile travel is becoming safer in terms of actual miles driven.

Accident and sickness don't "just happen." They are caused—often by factors that the individual can control. One major cause is that many people are careless about their safety and their health.

Our accident record, particularly over holiday weekends, proves that doctors, hospitals and safety engineers can do just so much. Remember—it is still the individual who carries the main responsibility for his own safety and health.

The Pennsylvania Story

Department Is Clean

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Rundown on Capitol Hill:

Efficiency-plus—It would be difficult to justify accusing Pennsylvania's educational fount, the Department of Public Instruction, of not keeping its face clean . . . at least on the surface.

To illustrate the point: the Department has asked approval of a bill in the amount of $297,32 for "paper towels" ("crying towels") quipped a departmental aide) . . . and another item: $405 for 324 "dust covers" . . . and this item undoubtedly has its efficiency sidelight somewhere: $8382.42 for a "cafeteria counter" for Clarion State Teachers College, one of 14 state-owned teacher colleges under the jurisdiction of the department.

Jaw-dropper — Capitol Hill wags are cluck-clucking in the direction of genial Dr. Berwyn F. Mattison, Pennsylvania's Secretary of Health — a professional public health officer rather than a professional politician.

Reason: in the current issue of the department's periodical, "Pennsylvania's Health" career-man Mattison is referring to the near-$49 million budget approved by the GOP-controlled 1957 Legislature.

"This sum, appropriated by the 1957 Legislature to the State Department of Health, is an increase of $5,640,000 over the budget of the previous 1955-57 biennium; or approximately 13 per cent."

What makes the Mattison comment remarkable is the fact that it is one of the few times — if not the only occasion — that an official of the Democratic Leader Administration has publicly conceded that there was a budgetary increase . . . rather than leading on the point that there was a dire budget cut (from that requested by the governor).

The Passing Parade — It is doubtful if bawling, dignified and highly personable Tom McBride, Pennsylvania's Attorney General, fully realized what he was letting himself in for when he accepted Governor Leader's bid to head up the State Department of Justice nearly a year ago.

Since moving into the top legal spot on the Pennsylvania scene McBride has had his hands and arms full—confronted with the conventional political pressures . . . yet the widely respected Philadelphia lawyer—onetime chancellor of the Quaker City Bar Association—has heaved to his line of "justice" regardless in a fashion that has amazed veteran Capitol Hill pundits . . . he is being rumored as a possible dark horse Democratic gubernatorial candidate for 1958.

Political candor — When Secretary of the Commonwealth Jim Finnegan (Adlai Stevenson's ill-fated campaign manager) boobled and chided GOP warhorse and Auditor General Charley Smith for delaying payment of some $50 million in state aid to fourth class school districts through the state — he started a cross-fire that Pennsylvanians can expect from now until next year.

The state aid payments were due October 1, warbled the gray-thatched Mr. Finnegan . . . not so, snapped the balding Mr. Smith, the payments are due "only during the month of October (correct) according to the law."

The conflict—quoth Finnegan in a rebuttal pother: "Any fair examination of the facts will show that the Department of Public Instruction did everything that was required of it to have the checks out by October 1."

Snapped Smith in a rebuttal-rebuttal: "The actual voucher transmittals from the Department of Public Instruction necessary to authorize these payments arrived in our office on October 4, although they were dated October 1."

(Note to silent and patient school districts: your checks started moving this week.)

Questions Facing Citizens

The Fund for the Republic, which may no longer be attributed to the Ford Foundation, is engaging in a study of the "questions facing Americans today."

Such a study is worth while no matter by whom it is made. The results, the conclusions, the decisions, reached may be of value or not depending upon the capabilities and integrity of those making the study and the correctness of the reporting of their discussions.

Among the questions which the Fund for the Republic says are facing Americans are these:

"When a union member wants to change the policy or the leadership of his union, does he have freedom of expression? What is the union's role in modern society?"

"When different religious groups discuss public service for parochial school children, are they approaching a fundamental problem in the church-state relationship in a democratic system?"

These may be among the important issues of the moment, although it would seem that they might be trivial compared with the realistic danger to this Republic arising out of its conflict with the Soviet Union. Since far having lost ground since the Berlin Airlift in 1949.

It appears to me that a study by great minds of the causes of our failure to meet the Russian attack on us and our way of life would be more important than whether children attending parochial school should be kept off buses and prevented from receiving free orange juice.

But maybe not. Perhaps Adolf A. Berle, Jr., Scott Buchanan, Eugene Burdick, Eric Goldman, Clark Kerr, Henry R. Luce, Father John Courtney Murray, Reinhold Niebuhr, Isidor I. Rabi and Robert Redfield, who are the consultants in these studies, will begin with the simpler problems and end with the cosmic one. They are to meet for discussion and debate in proper scholastic fashion. In fact, the brochure on the subject says:

"The committee has three functions: to think, to discuss, and to publish. Out of its deliberations and the work commensured by it, the Fund hopes that fresh definitions of fundamental problems and a clarification of the arguments concerning these problems will emerge. The discussions of the committee may become models of the rational debate essential to the democratic process . . ."

This is indeed a novel task, for most of the thinking in this world was not done by hebest but as a voluntary action by certain individuals who could not avoid thinking. I wonder who told Aristotle that he should think. Discussion undoubtedly has produced some truth.

Certainly the Sanhedrin produced a volume of truth as a result of discussion but generally speaking, most of the original individuals, often as one might say, got their ideas out of their own heads. As for models for rational debate, there are many, including the debates in the Congress of the United States which have kept this country moving since we became a nation.

Robert M. Hutchins, who runs the Fund for the Republic, says of this effort:

"It would be pretentious to suppose that any pioneering venture such as the program of studies we are undertaking could offer definitive solutions to the problem of how to maintain and expand individual liberties in an industrialized and politically polarized world. But I believe that the program offers reasonable expectation that the Fund can, by concentrating upon it, make its most effective contribution to the maintenance of freedom and justice in the United States."

This is very hopeful indeed, particularly as it is important to maintain freedom and justice in the United States. It is also important that we continue as a nation. It is also important that we should not be destroyed by war or infiltration.

But what, may I ask, is a "politically polarized world?" Perhaps the consultants will answer that. I suppose it means that the political world is divided between the two extremes, the East and the West, Communism and Capitalism, Totalitarianism and Democracy. But where is there such a precise division?

Anyhow, we are now to have an investigation, millions of dollars worth of investigation. Too bad that Voltaire is not alive to investigate the investigators, or Marx to curse them for the poverty of their ideas, or Joe McCarthy to haul them before his committee to discover their follies.

Behind The Scenes

In Hollywood

Hollywood—Hot on the heels of wife Irene Hervey's divorce suit, singer Allan Jones took off for London.

He'll be gone a month, doing TV shows and making appearances in British night clubs.

The new split-up in this marriage took Hollywood by complete surprise. Even close friends thought the couple was on solid ground since the mending of their previous rift.

The latest divorce action was Allan's idea. He asked for it. And this time, says Irene, there's no chance of a reconciliation.

Debbie Reynolds' anniversary present to Eddie Fisher was a surprise party in the Beverly Hills Hotel's Rodeo Room, where the pair had their wedding reception two years ago. Eddie's gift to Debbie was a pair of diamond earrings.

The reason she first considered filing for divorce in Juarez, Mexico, says Darryl Zanuck, is that she wanted to get the thing over with. "Santa Monica will be better, I'm sure," she declares. "I'm in no hurry to be free. I intend to date a lot of people, but I don't want to get married again for four or five years."

Vivian Blaine's ex-husband, Manny Frank, is recuperating from minor surgery. He was only one day in the hospital. Vivian flew in from Las Vegas to see him and to look at 100 acres of valley property she may buy for subdividing. The Tropica in Las Vegas is holding Vivian over for another four weeks. She heads to Europe in January.

By Thanksgiving, Doris Day tells me, she and Marty Melcher hope to move into their new home in Beverly Hills. This will give them time to get settled before Doris starts "Tunnel of Love" at MGM in January.

Loudest booster for Gene Wesson to get the role of John Barrymore in "Too Much, Too Soon" is Linda Darnell. She and her husband are great pals with Gene and his wife. If it will help, says Linda, she'll work free with Gene in his test at Warners.

Plan Nuclear A-Blast

Washington, Oct. 11 — The U. S. is considering an extraordinary nuclear test—exploding a bomb in outer space.

Possible height of this detonation is 500 to 4,000 miles above the earth.

Russia's aerial nuclear test early this week was from a plane flying at an estimated 30,000 to 60,000 feet. This was an approximate duplication of several hydrogen experiments conducted by Britain in the South Pacific last Spring.

To determine the feasibility and value of the proposed outer space explosion, a series of trials will get underway later this month at Eniwetok, the thermonuclear firing range in the South Pacific. They will be conducted by scientists of the Air Force and Atomic Energy Commission.

Designation of this unprecedented operation is "Far Side." These preparatory experiments will include firing of a number of new-type four-stage rockets, that will be shot into space from giant balloons "platforms" rising more than 100,000 feet above the ground.

Purpose of these rockets is to carry instruments from 2,000 to 4,000 miles into space.

That is four to eight times higher than the Soviet's history-making "sputnik."

Greatest height so far attained by a U. S. projectile was around 700 miles by a Jupiter-C, in a test last May of one of these Army intermediate range ballistic missiles.

Next highest was an Air Force Thor, which soared to some 400 miles in a recent test of these controversial IRBMs.

If decided on, an outer space nuclear test will take place next April.

A new series of weapons firings are in preparation for Eniwetok then, and this unique "shot" would be one of them.

One advantage claimed for such tests is the elimination of fallout.

Various factors, it is held, would force radioactive particles away from the earth's gravitational field and out of the solar system.

However, scientists admit there would be one new hazard.

This would be the immense light intensity produced by an outer space explosion. While conceding this danger, scientists contend it is not a serious one as it would be limited to a "few hundred" miles of the test area.

The Joint Congressional Atomic Committee has received a special study on a nuclear space test by Stanley H. Clark, top scientist of a key missile contractor.

Publishable highlights of this report are: "Nuclear tests outside of the earth's atmosphere . . . are technically feasible. We are now in a position to launch

Even Croupiers, hardened to big shots and staggering sums won and lost at Las Vegas gaming tables, blinked their eyes when one luckless wight lost, on successive nights, $50,000, $75,000 and $90,000.

"Good heavens!" gasped a croupier, "where do you dredge up all that money? From a pump?" The gambler socked him right in the nose, snarling, "Don't you call my wife a pump!"

A portrait painter, vacationing in the Ozarks, came across an old mountaineer who delighted him. "Pop," he proposed, "I'll give you $10 if you'll let me paint you." The old man weighed the offer carefully, then answered, "It's a deal on one condition. You gotta tell me how to get the paint off afterwards."

Two urchins matched hands after an afternoon in a mud-pile. "My hands is dirtier'n yours," boasted one. "Okay," said the second, "but you're a year older than me."

The magnitude of an explosion and most of its physical characteristics can be ascertained during detonation in space . . . The point, I would like to stress technically is that it is completely safe from the radiological hazard standpoint to test weapons in space."

Air Force authorities have also explained to the committee that the biggest difficulty of an outer space nuclear test is devising means of learning anything about its results.

The impending rocket experiments at Eniwetok are largely for that purpose.

From The Readers

Mr. Hill, Editor The Record Dear Sir:

In spite of the fine publicity your newspaper gave the UNICEF drive last year, there are still a number of people who do not know what it is all about. Here is a copy of the letter that was sent to each of the area school principals of Monroe County.

Valerie M. Lee

Dear Sir: Last year, two of our county schools participated in a Trick or Treat for UNICEF drive at Halloween. This year, we are hoping that it will become a county-wide program.

It may sound like a lot of work, but really, it isn't. When the children dress and go out to "trick or treat" they ask for pennies for the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund. The money is later sent to underprivileged children all over the world to be used for medicine and milk.

The Ramsey and Morey Schools conducted the campaign through the 3rd, 4th, 5th, and 6th grades. All that each teacher had to do was place a container in the room for the money. A spirit of competition developed, and it was an exciting day when it was over, and the money was counted. A certified check was then sent to the United Nations in New York City.

McConnells Celebrate Special Day

by Jim Riley

Yesterday was a big day for Milwaukee baseball fans—but they didn't have a corner on all the celebration.

The John McConnells, of Stokes Mill Road, East Stroudsburg, Pa., also enjoyed a day of celebration. It was John's birthday and the eighth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. McConnell.

The wedding anniversary number was readily available, but nothing was heard about the birthday listing.

A double amount of congratulations is in order for the double anniversary.

Dot Besecker, Tannersville, is currently a student at the Easton School of Beauty. Dot graduated from Pocono High School last June.

Don Olsonmer, co-captain elect of the Greene-Dreher Sterling High School basketball team, has just returned home from the Hahnemann Hospital, Scranton.

Don had a cyst removed from his spine.

The other co-captain of the Greene-Dreher-Sterling cage machine is Don's twin brother, Ronnie.

John Wilson, Jr., is working overtime to make tomorrow's ham and egg breakfast a success.

The breakfast is being presented by the men of the Presbyterian Church of the Mountain, Delaware Water Gap. Starting time is 8 a.m.

Al Kassner was one of the happiest guys in the area when Milwaukee won the World Series on Thursday.

Al, who lives at 161 Analomink St., East Stroudsburg, really knows his baseball. It wasn't too long ago that he was a solid Yankee fan.

But, he apparently saw the handwriting on the wall this year.

Don Allen and Mrs. Allen celebrated their third wedding anniversary in quiet fashion on Wednesday of this week.

Don is a Daily Record reporter.

Craig Morris, son of Mrs. Martha Morris, 405 Normal St., East Stroudsburg, is celebrating a birthday today. Best wishes and a good day, Craig.

Herb Crane, 603 Thomas St., Stroudsburg, is developing into a sports car fan.

He goes for these "hill climbs" in a big way.

Two Schools Hold Own Against Colds

MONROE County public schools seemed to be holding their own against the common cold and "la grippe" yesterday. Officials at both East Stroudsburg Area Joint Schools and Stroud Union Schools said that absences were very nearly the same yesterday as they had been the day before.

Carl T. Secor, East Stroudsburg supervising principal, said that "we've apparently hit the point where those who are absent for the first time are being balanced out by those who are returning to classes after a siege of colds or virus."

Slight Rise
Earl F. Groner, Stroud Union superintendent, said that absences in his district were about 12 per cent of the total enrollment yesterday. That represented a rise of about one per cent over the preceding day.

St. Matthew's Parochial School in East Stroudsburg closed at noon yesterday after school officials found a hundred students out of the total enrollment of slightly more than 300 were absent.

Elsewhere in the county absences continued "about normal" at Pocono Mountain Joint Schools.

School officials last night indicated that they were watching with sharp eyes the effect of the weekend on health situations in their classrooms. One schoolman said that "if parents keep the kids in the home over the weekend, there should be a sharp drop in the number of reported illnesses."

At East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, plans are still going strong for the annual homecoming football game and celebration today.

Flying Group Of Farmers Visits Area

MOUNT POCONO — The sturdy, smiling band of men and women who stepped out of gleaming modern planes at Mount Pocono Airport had one other thing in common besides the fact that they were aircraft pilots. They were all farmers, too.

There were 15 of the planes. And they deposited a total of 50 guests for an overnight stop in the Poconos. They were all members of the National Flying Farmers Assn. of Wichita, Kansas, a unique organization dedicated to the promotion of the practical use of airplanes in American farming.

All of the 50 members belong to Region One which includes Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and nine other states. They held official meeting sessions at Ontonowaga Hotel.

Speaker

Main speaker at last night's dinner meeting at The Ontonowaga was Kenneth C. Butler, Hutchinson, Minn., national president, who praised Region One for its program and progress. Butler also complimented the Pocono Mountains area for its airfield at Mount Pocono and added that he hoped "when the group comes back next year you will have that 4,000-foot runway you're going to build."

L. L. Logan, Region One director, presided at the meeting. He announced that the national convention will be held in New York State. Special guests were National Queen, Mrs. Florence Krohm, Prairie City, Iowa and Pennsylvania Queen, Mrs. Charlotte Huber of Peach Bottom. The fliers were greeted at the airport by R. LeRoy Dengler, vice president of the Mount Pocono Chamber of Commerce. They were welcomed at dinner by Jack O'Neill, secretary of the Top of the Poconos Assn. The group voted to return to Mount Pocono within the next six months.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Looking over the rich array of desserts at the Stroud Community Club's covered dish supper the other night, we came to the conclusion that clubs differ in food preferences as they often do in fields of interest.

For instance the Junior Women's Club suppers about in the fancy and esoteric casserole—the silvered almonds in the green beans, the orange and marshmallow in the sweet potatoes, avocado and blue cheese in the salads.

They are young cooks confident enough to try anything and new enough at this cooking business not to have developed any well-worn, traditional ruts.

The Junior Women don't go for covered dish suppers as a rule. When they eat out, they want to do it in comfort—no cooking and lugging before-hand, and especially to do the clearing away. But they can make a mighty tasty cookie and the daintiest of sandwiches.

The Garden Club goes in for salad, arranged with an eye to color, line and emphasis with the same care as they might do a flower arrangement.

Well, the Stroud Community Club as post-graduate juniors have tried all the recipes in the book and decided on their favorites, but dessert! Ah, there's another matter. What with dieting husbands and well-nutritioned children to think of at home, they really go to town on desserts when there's nobody's stomach to be considered but their own.

If I could have stayed a little longer I might have talked about something besides the Stroud Club's food. Even so I discovered several prospective "The Baby's Named" candidates; had a chance to admire Mrs. Robert Ellenberger's knitted dress, which she made herself; and to notice that Helen Wilson was being kept so busy in the kitchen that she wasn't having any chance to brood about seeing son Danny off for the Air Force in Texas that afternoon.

It was a good party and from the looks of that handsome yearbook it should be a very good year for one of the youngest of our federated clubs.

Handicap Can Be A Blessing If Used For Others

A physical handicap can be a bane or a blessing to others. A shining example of how a handicapped person can turn the hours of enforced leisure into beauty that in turn helps others is Mrs. Harry Adams of 608 North Courtland St., East Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Adams was recently presented with a "Brace for an Ace" award by the Pennsylvania Assn. for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc. for her contributions for the crippled over a long period of years.

Just how many years even Mrs. Adams can't remember, but the handkerchiefs with the borders which she has tatted, the piles of crocheted work she has made from her own material and turned over to the Monroe County Crippled Children's Society have brought in an average of $100 a year to be used to help the handicapped.

The whole thing started casually enough with a visit from Mrs. William Webb, a charter member of the Crippled Children's Assn. Mrs. Webb was admiring some of Mrs. Adams' crocheting and tatted, when Mrs. Adams wondered aloud about whether some of it could be sold for the benefit of Crippled Children.

"And it wasn't necessary at all," she said. "I didn't do it for recognition or praise. If some handicapped person was helped by the money, that's reward enough for me. I know what it is to be handicapped."

Mrs. Adams is handicapped by arthritis in her knees which makes walking difficult and standing for any length of time impossible. Even sitting is painful since the muscles soon start to jump. However, she discovered that when her hands were busy and her mind occupied with the sewing, crocheting or tatted, which she had loved from childhood, it was easier to bear.

However, when your hands are skillful and the hours are long, the amount of handwork you can do soon outruns the amount you can use in your home. For Mrs. Adams it is represented here in a few samples of the articles which Mrs. Harry Adams has made, using her own material, for the benefit of the Monroe County Assn. for Crippled Children and Adults, this year. Antimacassars and tidies, table covers and doilies are among the larger pieces. Those sock-like things in darker colors are crocheted covers for thermos jugs. That miniature hat? That's just a pin cushion made from little bits of crocheted cotton she had left over.

PRETTY AND PRACTICAL are the baby bibs, another popular article in Mrs. Adams' treasure store. They are crocheted in single crochet and are thick and absorbent. The crocheted flowers in color are applied to the bib.

MOST POPULAR are the hand-tatted handkerchiefs which Mrs. Adams makes. She has offered to tat samples for any handicapped person who wishes to follow her example. In the lower picture the circles are tatted separately and then joined together.

Mrs. Webb said she could try—and try she did with the results that a steady flow of money has been available for special needs of the handicapped in this county. The recognition given Mrs. Adams at the annual meeting of the local association was the public acknowledgment of the debt they owe Mrs. Adams.

"And it wasn't necessary at all," she said. "I didn't do it for recognition or praise. If some handicapped person was helped by the money, that's reward enough for me. I know what it is to be handicapped."

Mrs. Adams is handicapped by arthritis in her knees which makes walking difficult and standing for any length of time impossible. Even sitting is painful since the muscles soon start to jump. However, she discovered that when her hands were busy and her mind occupied with the sewing, crocheting or tatted, which she had loved from childhood, it was easier to bear.

However, when your hands are skillful and the hours are long, the amount of handwork you can do soon outruns the amount you can use in your home. For Mrs. Adams it is represented here in a few samples of the articles which Mrs. Harry Adams has made, using her own material, for the benefit of the Monroe County Assn. for Crippled Children and Adults, this year. Antimacassars and tidies, table covers and doilies are among the larger pieces. Those sock-like things in darker colors are crocheted covers for thermos jugs. That miniature hat? That's just a pin cushion made from little bits of crocheted cotton she had left over.

PRETTY AND PRACTICAL are the baby bibs, another popular article in Mrs. Adams' treasure store. They are crocheted in single crochet and are thick and absorbent. The crocheted flowers in color are applied to the bib.

MOST POPULAR are the hand-tatted handkerchiefs which Mrs. Adams makes. She has offered to tat samples for any handicapped person who wishes to follow her example. In the lower picture the circles are tatted separately and then joined together.

Installation of officers of the Stroud Community Club on Thursday night at the YMCA. Installed by Mrs. Claude Leister, president of the Monroe County Federation of Women's Clubs were:

Mrs. William J. Howard, president; Mrs. James Gillilan, first vice president; Mrs. William M. Brown, second vice president; Mrs. Clifton Johnson, secretary; Mrs. Frank Talasz, treasurer.

Mrs. Howard introduced the chairman who will this year head the committees of the club: Mrs. William M. Brown, program; Mrs. Gillilan, welfare; Mrs. T. D. Hoffman, Mrs. John Sibley, Mrs. Hazel West, finance; Mrs. William Brinker, departmental; Mrs. W. L. Clugston, community affairs; Mrs. Lester Katz, education; Mrs. Robert Harper, hospitality; Mrs. Theodore Price, log book; Mrs. Claude Heller, moral and spiritual; Mrs. George Mensch, Jr., name badges; Mrs. L. overflowed to help others.

The Crippled Children's Assn. is just one of the many charities which has benefitted from her handiwork. She and her husband recently took nine quilt tops which she had pieced together to the Tipton's Orphans Home where church groups and other women who like to quilt will make them into quilts.

Mr. Adams doesn't begrudge the time she spends in this service to others. He has hobbies and talents of his own. Among them is photography. He admired the pictures of the close-ups of her work but not the picture of her.

"Not a good picture of her," he insisted. "It doesn't do her justice."

It would be difficult either in words or pictures to do justice to the spirit of Mrs. Adams who has turned what might have been hours of painful rebellion into hours of usefulness for others.

She is not content to stop there, either. In this week devoted to National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week, she offered to make a sample of her work for any handicapped person who might wish to follow her example.

At the meeting, Mrs. Jean Barthold, gave a detailed report of the recent regional convention held at Galen Hall, Tannersville.

Progressive Women Begin Service To Community

Saylorsburg — The Saylorsburg Progressive Woman's Club, which is in charge of house-to-house canvass for the Community Chest Drive, got set for work at their opening meeting held on Wednesday night at the Hamilton Twp. School. Envelopes and material were distributed to the women who will work in the area.

Mrs. Grant Knowles, new president, presided at the meeting, opening with a poem "Dumb Old County Lass." The first president of the club, Mrs. Dorothy Budge, installed two of the officers who were absent at the Spring installation: Mrs. Wesley Shafer, vice president; and Mrs. Harry Weiss, treasurer.

Other officers are Mrs. Franklin Christman, financial secretary; and Mrs. Harvey Heller, secretary.

October events listed for the club were:

The Sample Fair to be held October 21 at Chestnut Hill High School.

The County Federation meeting at which the Progressive Women are to be hosts, at Green View Guest Farm on Tuesday, October 22. Club members will make reservations with Mrs. George Haffler, Mrs. William Fisher or Mrs. Grant Knowles no later than October 18.

Miss Stark Speaks The program featured a talk by Miss Lillian Stark of Delaware Water Gap, a teacher in Stroud Union High School. Miss Stark, who has studied for two summers at the United Nations and who conducts tours there, spoke on its physical make-up, its organizations, and some of its accomplishments.

"The United Nations," she said, "is a very friendly place and the most democratic in the world." She showed slides of the buildings. Since the United States is the wealthiest country in the world we pay 32 percent of the upkeep of the buildings, she said.

She outlined particularly the work of the Food and Agriculture Organizations which have provided food in times of famine and which help countries solve their own agricultural problems.

Miss Deanna Kristoff of Bangor was soloist, singing "If I Could Tell You" and "Desert Song."

Refreshments were served from tables decorated with cornucopias of fruit and Fall leaves with Mrs. Oscar Bonser and her committee in charge.

BAKE SALE Sat. Morning 9 to 12 At Wyckoff's Sponsored by Mrs. Stine's B.B. Class, East Stroudsburg Methodist Church

The Wyckoff Shopper

When I wrote my column about the Milton S. Hershey School last week, I did not realize that this is the Centennial Year of the founder, the late Milton Snavely Hershey. This highly interesting fact was revealed in a handsomely assembled copy of "The Spartan," a news-magazine published by the student body during the school year, which arrived at my desk yesterday, accompanied by a most gracious letter from Mr. John O. Hershey, school superintendent.

It never fails to surprise me the way this column of mine gets around! Certainly it reaches more farflung points at a greater rate of speed than I ever shall . . . unless they begin selling space on earth satellites. Mr. Wyckoff, much to my surprise, discovered a copy of the "Wyckoff Shopper" attached to the bulletin board of a New York City firm one day. I have found the column quoted in one newspaper and one trade magazine, and letters have come from as far away as Hong Kong and Japan, on occasion.

I am most grateful to those readers who see fit to forward any material they feel would be of interest to other persons . . . for I myself am hopelessly remiss about doing so. My intentions are excellent—I clip the articles, intending to mail them here or there, but somehow, in the welter of other work to be done, correspondence is neglected, and the clippings eventually go into the wastebasket.

One reader, a friend of the Hershey Chocolate Company president, was kind enough to forward the Hershey column which then went to the school superintendent's desk . . . and Mr. Hershey, as busy as he must be, was thoughtful enough to write. To all concerned—my most sincere thanks and well wishes.

Happy Columbus Day to you! And may your ship come in in the very near future. WHY? Because in the VERY near future, you'll be wishing you had barrels of money to spend to SAVE MONEY. Maybe it doesn't make sense—but if you watch the newspaper, and listen to the radio, you'll see that I'm not giving you any bum steer. I'm right on the beam, as you'll want to be also, with Christmas right around the corner! . . . Right Around Wyckoff's: Dottie Dunn, taking time between calls at the switchboard to decorate two Christmas candles—one shaped like a tree, the other like a snowball. WHY? Because those candles are going to be—oh well, let's skip it! Just keep in touch with Wyckoff's via the newspaper and radio . . . In our Children's Department a little girl was having a wonderful time on the broad back of our Old Gray Mare. "Hi!" she called, as I passed. "D'ya want to know where my Mommie is?" she demanded. "She's that-away. D'ya want to know WHY? Because she's looking at dresses and buying something for me." As I walked by, she lashed Dobbin with an imaginary whip and cantered away. That poor overworked horse is the best Baby Sitter any store ever had . . . Also enjoying a ride with Dobbin the other day were Billy and Eddie Magann, sons of Dr. Magann, the local dentist, and his wife. Sometime I must inquire just how old our horse is—it seems to me I remember him from a very long time ago . . . More things are shaped by corsets than you and I could possibly dream of—including the paychecks of countless construction workers. An air mail letter from the Form-fit Company, Chicago, informs me that contracts have just been signed for the erecting of a 21,000 square foot air conditioned plant to be built at a cost of $200,000 in Beatrice, Nebraska. Makes you stop to think how much unemployment there might be if women suddenly stopped wearing corsets, bras, and such other big business items as powder, lipstick, rouge, hosiery, nail polish, etc. . . . When I look at all the stacks of work piled upon my desk, I think I'd like to adopt a theme song and make it come true—something like "Far, Far Away." And I'd like that "far away" to be Europe, where the Wyckoff Travel Bureau's party is blithely heading this very moment. Among those sailing Wednesday morning aboard the Queen Elizabeth were Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Wyckoff, Edna Brockman, head of the Travel Bureau; Bea Gorgy of our accessories department; Laura Fabel, of our hosiery department, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Tucker. How I envy anyone, right this minute, who can get away from it all for six wonderful weeks.

ESSTC-Lock Haven Meet Today

Martin's Team Riddled By Flu And Virus

A FLU-STRUCK East Stroudsburg State Teachers College eleven will meet Lock Haven S.T.C. in a Pennsylvania Teachers Grid Conference tussle on the Warriors' field today. Kick off time is 2 p.m.

Missing from the Warriors' lineup will be first string backfieldmen Jim Oplinger, a quarterback, and Dick Bleam, right half. Also sidelined because of the injuries and flu are top reserves Tom Yorman, a center, and Warren Payne, a tackle.

The virus hit the ESSTC campus in force this week and hampered the Warriors drills daily. On one day, ten of Martin's chatters were absent, and the next eight more would be out and five would return. It went this way all week.

"There is no question that we will not be up to peak condition today," the veteran ESSTC mentor said last night. "We haven't had a full squad out for one single drill the past seven days."

Martin plans to start former East Stroudsburg High star Frank Lupin, in Bleam's spot, and send Billy Barrett into Oplinger's signal-calling post.

The rest of the lineup will have Charley German and Jerry Keyser at ends; Joe Martino

FRANK LUPIN To Start Today

and Charley Brayford, guards; Larry Crosswhite, and Jake Platt, tackles; and Jesse De-Esch, center.

Joining Lupin and Barrett in the Warrior backfield will be John Brunner, fullback, and Dick Mierke, halfback.

Martin also announced that he is toying with the idea of moving Mierke to tailback and sending Errol Faunce, one of his top runners, into the full-back slot.

Rated High
Lock Haven, idle last week because of the same old story—flu—will bring a squad here which is rated high in the state teachers ranks.

Led by George Dintiman, everybody's selection for all-PFTC honors last year, the Bald Eagles will field a veteran squad.

Last night in East Stroudsburg, the "Hill" student body held a pep rally and parade, injecting "Milwaukee" spirit in the Warrior eleven.

Logart Wins Over Miceli

DETROIT, Oct. 11 (AP)—Isaac Logart, a Cuban fancy dancer with lightning in both fists, gave Joe Miceli a thorough beating tonight, taking a unanimous decision in their 10-round welterweight bout at Olympia Stadium. Logart weighed 147½, Miceli was a half-pound heavier.

There were no knockdowns in the contest that was nationally televised and broadcast over NBC, but Miceli, 28, was close to going down on at least half a dozen occasions.

The slim crowd applauded the courageous New Yorker at the finish. Judge Andy Brown scored it 46-41, Judge Al Goodman 47-43, and Referee Lou Handler 47-39, all in Logart's favor. The Associated Press had Logart winning 49-36.

Cards Release
Cooper, Dickson

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 11 (AP)—Frank Lane, general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, today announced that Walker Cooper and Murry Dickson, two of baseball's oldest active players, have been unconditionally released.

Catcher Cooper is 42 and Dickson, a pitcher, is 41. Lane said they were being dropped to make room for more young ball players on the Cardinal roster.

Unpleasant Surprises Await College Grid Teams Today

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
The Associated Press

COLLEGE football teams which have come through two or three games in such a way as to reach the upper section of the weekly rankings may be in for some unpleasant surprises today — and that goes for Oklahoma, too.

The top-rated Sooners, who smothered Pitt and Iowa State in their first two starts, generally are regarded as too strong, too swift and too well-coached for their opponents. But there's just an outside possibility that the combination of flu and Texas could stop Oklahoma at Dallas.

Texas, beaten by South Carolina last week, doesn't look strong enough to beat a fit Oklahoma team. Darrell Royal, the smart young Longhorn coach, claims he hasn't much chance against his old teacher, Bud Wilkinson. But it might be another story if the after-effects of illness cost Clendon Thomas & Co. some of their speed and keenness.

Form Reversals
Further down the ranking list there are plenty of chances for form reversals. Second-ranked Michigan State meets sixth-ranked Michigan in an anything-can-happen game before 101,000 spectators at Ann Arbor. The line that makes the Spartans six-point favorites could be wrong.

Texas A&M (No. 3) meets Houston, a low-scoring but tough team that has been beaten by Baylor; Duke (5) tackles unbeaten Rice, which may be stronger than its current No. 15 rating shows; and Army (10) plays Notre Dame (12), another of the many flu-riddled teams.

Easier assignments are in store for Minnesota (4), Iowa (8) and Auburn (9) against a trio of non-winners, Northwestern, Indiana and Kentucky, and for Oregon State (7) against Idaho, which has won once. But even those teams have some fire power.

Another crowd of over 100,000 is expected at Philadelphia for the resumption of the Army-Notre Dame series, broken off 10 years ago mainly because of too-great enthusiasm by the fans. Army, which appeared vulnerable to passes in last week's 27-13 victory over Penn State, is listed as a slight favorite. The outcome may well depend on how quickly the Notre Dame players have recovered from the 24-hour variety of influenza.

Other Big Ones
The big ones which will help decide conference races include Illinois-Ohio State and Wisconsin-Purdue (Big Ten); Brown-Dartmouth, Columbia-Yale and Penn-Princeton (Ivy League); Clemson-Virginia and Wake Forest-Maryland (Atlantic Coast); Georgia Tech-Louisiana State and Mississippi-Vanderbilt (Southeastern); Iowa State-Kansas (Big Eight); Arkansas-Baylor (Southwest); New Mexico-Utah State, Colorado State-Wyoming, Brigham Young-Utah and Denver-Montana (Skyline); Washington State-Stanford and Washington-UCLA (Pacific Coast).

Some top intersectional tussles are Nebraska-Pittsburgh, William and Mary-Penn State, Dayton-Boston College, Holy Cross-Marquette, Alabama-Texas Christian, Arizona-Colorado, Navy-California and Kansas State-College of Pacific.

Top punt return man in Syracuse University history is Dick Banger. In 1939 and 1940 he returned a total of 38 punts.

Kansas City Gives Craft New Contract

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 11 (AP)—Harry Craft won a full year contract today as manager of the Kansas City Athletics, mainly because his club played almost 500 ball after he took over last Aug. 6.

Craft, 42, has been a familiar face here through the past 15 years. When he succeeded Lou Boudreau the impression was left that Craft would get a full year at the helm if the Athletics perked up.

At the time the A's were in last place and in the midst of a losing streak, Craft led his team to 23 victories as against 27 losses and the A's finished seventh.

Mum On Salary
The matter of Craft's salary was not disclosed today nor were any of the principals in the transaction here. The announcement was made by Gordon Smith, A's public relations man.

Craft, who had seen the first five games of the World Series, was reportedly fishing near Monroe, La. Arnold Johnson, A's owner, was not immediately available, after watching the windup of the series in New York.

Top 2-Year-Olds Race At Belmont
NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—Most of the country's top contenders for the 2-year-old championship will clash tomorrow in the $150,000-plus Champagne Stakes at Belmont Park.

But Dedicate won't be at hand to meet Gallant Man in the co-featured $75,000-added Jockey Club Gold Cup.

The Gold Cup, a rugged two-mile affair, takes second billing to the one-mile Champagne, which may pinpoint the colt who will have a lot to say about the 1958 Kentucky Derby and other 3-year-old classics.

Heading the Champagne parade are the Jaclyn Stable's Lil' Fella, the Maine Chance Farm's Jewel's Reward, the Wheatley Stable's Misty Flight, and a dangerous Llangollen Farm entry of Crasher and Rise 'N' Shine. However, an injury caused the withdrawal of Jester, Belmont Futurity winner.

Red Sox Purchase Rochester Hurler
BOSTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox today announced the purchase of right-handed pitcher Garry Blaylock from Rochester of the International League.

Blaylock, posted a 10-11 record this past year at Rochester. His earned run average was 3.73 for the 181 innings he worked.

AF Academy Seen Ready For Bigtime

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Air Force Academy, in only its third season, was pictured today as all set to fly into bigtime football competition.

"I've made up my mind," said Col. George Simler, the new academy's athletic director. "We're going to go right ahead."

That means, unless Simler is overruled by higher authority, the Falcons will face Iowa, Stanford, Tulane and Colorado among their 10 opponents next fall.

Several weeks ago Simler said the academy's performance against Occidental and Detroit would help determine how quickly the fly boys dared to take on a top-flight schedule.

Come-Back
Subbing for flu-ridden Florida, the Academy had been rocked by UCLA in its opener, 47-0. Then the Falcons trounced Occidental, 40-6, and beat Detroit, 19-12.

That was enough for Simler, a former Maryland end, without waiting for the outcome of the academy's game here tonight with George Washington.

Simler still needs approval from Maj. Gen. James E. Briggs, academy superintendent, but expressed confidence the general would agree.

Launching a three-way service rivalry, the Air Academy reportedly expects to play Navy in 1959 and Army in 1960.

Stroudsburg Vs. Wilson At 8 P.M. Here Today

100-Piece Warrior Musical Unit Featured

STROUDSBURG HIGH puts its unbeaten record on the line today when the Mountaineers entertain highly-touted Wilson Borough under the lights at Gordon Giffels Field. Game time is 8 p. m.

The contest, quickly scheduled by the officials of both schools when their regularly slated tilts were postponed because of illness of their foes, is tabbed as one of the better high school games scheduled for the area this weekend.

Wilson, who was supposed to have played Bangor, is one of the top-ranking eleveners yearly in the Lehigh-Northampton League. Stroudsburg, "flued out" of its tilt with Pen Argyl, has swept by three foes in Lehigh Valley competition, thus far, this year.

One of the highlights of the pre-game ceremonies will be the appearance of the 100-piece Wilson High Band. The musical unit, performers annually at the world-wide Lions Convention, and only recently the band picked to shove off the 1957 Philadelphia Eagles National Football League season, will exhibit wares prior to the start of the contest. They are expected to start parading and tooting about 7:30 p. m.

End Workouts
Stroudsburg wound up drills for the Wilson contest last night. Head Coach John Whitehead sent his Mountaineers through a light signal drill, stressing offense and pass defense.

The Stroudsburg grid boss announced that the same lineup which was triumphant in the early starts will open against the Warriors.

At the end will be Larry Storms or Ed Hermanns and Dick Cramsey. The tackles will be Bill Bolich and Bob Kassay. At the guards will be Captain Dick Reiger and Al Ettinger, and Bob Coolbaugh will handle the center post.

The Mountaineers initial backfield will have either Dick Everitt or Bill Schoonover at quarterback; Doug Wright or John Gilpin, and John Schoonover, halfbacks; and Ron (Sunny) Phillips at his regular full-back post.

Lionel (Jud) Hall is expected to go with his regular unit of Young and Haag, ends; Brotzman and Berger, tackles; Walters and Murray, guards; and Smith, center.

The Warriors backfield will be composed of Barr, Helms, Kilne and Heinrich.

Seating Arrangement
Mahon Serfass, faculty manager of athletics at Stroudsburg, announced that the new seating arrangement will go into effect at today's game. Serfass said that adults will sit on the west side of the Stroudsburg High Band, and that students will sit on the east end of the musical organization.

Handwriting Is On Wall-- Milwaukee Newest Dynasty

By CHUCK CAPALDO

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 11 (AP)—

The handwriting is on the wall for all baseball to see.

In unmistakable language it says a new baseball dynasty is abroad in the land bearing the name of the Milwaukee Braves.

The newly crowned champions of the world.

Baseball men, those associated with the Braves and their National League opponents, recognize it.

"When they win the championship," said owner Lou Perini of the Braves some months back, "they will go on for a few years to come."

"There is no reason why we should not keep winning for the next five years," said John Quinn, the club's general manager and as such the architect of their future.

Lane Worried

Frank Lane, general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, put it this way:

"This was the year to beat the Braves. Next year I'm afraid they'll be unstoppable."

The reason baseball men believe Milwaukee has supplanted the Dodgers as the class of the National League are twofold:

It is a young club—the team on the field in the World Series finale against the Yankees averaged only 25.4 years—and its farm system is one of the most valuable and productive in the game today.

The system, in fact, rivals any of recent years. Then there's always Perini's bankroll, unfolded and ready to buy what his farms don't produce.

Farm System

The Braves' relied on their farm system during the pennant drive when one regular after another was injured. And they relied on it during the World Series when Felix Mantilla spelled the injured Red Schoendienst at second.

Frank Torre handled first base for a none-too-strong Joe Adcock and Bob Hazle, the Hurricane, played right field. Mantilla, Torre and Hazle are graduates of the Braves' minor league incubator.

Manager Fred Haney, who will be rewarded with a new contract and a raise any day now, is expected to go along another year with much of the same player cast that won the championship.

This includes Billy Bruton, the centerfielder who wrenched his right knee on July 11 and didn't play another minute this season.

Changes probably will be restricted to the pitching staff where he has some pruning in mind and perhaps in his coaching staff.

Navy Midgets Drill Monday

COACH BILL LAISE has called a practice session of the Navy team of the East Stroudsburg Midget Football League at the J. M. Hill Field, Monday, starting at 5:30 p.m. All players are urged to report.

Bowling Clinic

BY BILLY SIXTY

Is Your Stride Off-Line?

IN THE SKETCH, you see what happens if you finish abruptly at the foul line, entirely without stride. The left foot finishes broadside instead of straight on. Note also what happens to the swing. The shoulder drops and the arm is "pulled" to the left of the head pin.

Besides throwing the swing out of kilter, the broadside finish so unbalances you at the line that it puts tremendous pressure on the leg muscles and soon brings on a painful "charley horse."

Practice

Correct your off-line finish by practicing repeated slides without using a ball until you find yourself in perfect balance.

Timing is the objective of all the stars. To get it and keep it, you've got to finish not only straight-on with the left foot, but you've got to develop a rhythmic, unvaried stride.

It all stems back to the very first movement—back to the line.

push-away. The first step must be slow. The push-away of the ball, toward the pins, must be made in unison with the first step—and the first step must be straight-on. Deviate the least rhythmic, unvaried stride, to the right, and chances are you'll wind up broadside at first movement—back to the line.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to speed up your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 1. If the number is less than 6, add 5. The result is your key number. Start at the lower left hand corner of the rectangle and check every letter of your first name, left to right. Then read the message by letters under the checked figures give you.

Club Plays Host To Candidates

WOMEN'S Democratic Club of Monroe County held its "candidates' night" meeting Wednesday at Stroud Community House.

Main speakers, among candidates, were Russell Mervine and Nelson Westbrook. Honored guest was Mrs. Ethel Matthes, regional director of Democratic Women's Clubs, from Wilkes-Barre.

Mervine promised to fulfill duties of the post he seeks—that of judge of Monroe and Pike County Courts—in fairness to all persons concerned. He told members that because he had taken no part in politics in the past he would show no favoritism.

The candidate also emphasized that he is seeking "one term only" in the campaign for the post. He pledged to "treat all lawyers and litigants with dignity regardless of party affiliation and with no delay in the processing of cases through the courts."

Praise Mrs. Matthes praised the local women's group on the progress it has made during recent years and under its present director, Mrs. Ella Mae Shaw, club president. She pointed out that registration results brought in by the Democratic Women's Club of Luzerne County has been "overwhelming" due to good organization and interested workers.

Others attending the meeting were Mrs. Mayne Furman, State committeewoman from Luzerne County and a delegation from the Women's Democratic Club of Barrett Township.

Other speakers were: N. Henry Fenner, county prothonotary; Floyd Butz, register and recorder; Jacob Altemose, county sheriff, and Van D. Yetter, county chairman. Two local candidates who were presented and gave brief remarks were Myrtle Angle, running for a second term as Stroud Township tax collector, and Mrs. Lillian Kitchen, candidate for tax collector in Delaware Water Gap.

Lackawanna County—Repair a concrete bridge on U. S. 611 over Roaring Brook Creek; M and M Construction, Stroudsburg, $146,750.

Dingmans Ferry Proves Popular With Hunters

DINGMAN'S FERRY — A greater than usual number of hunters seem to have come to this area of Pike County during the current "Bow and Arrow" season. Quite a few have been seen in the various wooded areas around here, and a number have been staying at the local hotels and boarding houses.

Wesley To Be Honored At Service

MOUNTAINHOME — A service in honor of the 250th anniversary of the birth of Charles Wesley will be held at the Mountainhome Methodist Church tomorrow at 7:30. It was announced by the pastor, Rev. Harold N. MacMurray.

Charles Wesley, who with his brother John, stirred England with the Wesleyan Revival in the 18th Century, was not only an eminent scholar and preacher, but stands as the greatest hymn-writer of the Church.

A total of over 6,500 hymns came from his pen, and among them are some of the best known and loved hymns that Christians of all denominations sing. More of his hymns are in general use today than those of any other writer.

Hymns Two of the Christmas hymns he wrote, "Hark, the herald angels sing" and "Come, Thou long-expected Jesus," are among the best known of Christmas carols. Among his other hymns, we find, in the hymnals of every denomination, such great ones as "O For a Thousand Tongues to Sing My Great Redeemer's Praise," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Ye Servants of God, Your Master Praise."

Tomorrow night's service will be unique, in that the greater part will consist of congregational singing of Wesley's hymns, under the direction of Martin W. Baumgartner.

Rev. MacMurray will bring a brief address on the life and times of Charles Wesley, and will also give a description of the circumstances under which each hymn was written, and how it was used by the Wesleys in their great evangelistic work.

Monroe Among Commercial Corn Areas

Northampton Also Listed By State

HARRISBURG, Oct. 11 (AP)—Thirty-one Pennsylvania counties have been designated commercial corn producing areas for 1958 under a new U. S. Agriculture Department ruling.

The counties are the same ones included in the commercial area for this year.

Counties are designated commercial producing areas on this basis:

1. Those having an annual production of corn as grain during the preceding 10 years of 450 bushels or more per farm and four bushels or more per acre.

2. Those counties bordering on the commercial corn-producing area in which there is a minor civil division likely to produce those amounts of corn in 1958.

Designation

The designation "commercial" corn producing area means acreage allotments are required. The allotments will be announced later in the year. Price supports are available for corn produced in the commercial area at a higher level than for corn produced in non-commercial areas.

Counties included in the commercial area this year are:

Adams, Berks, Blair, Bucks, Carbon, Centre, Chester, Clinton, Columbia, Cumberland, Dauphin, Delaware, Franklin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Juniata, Lancaster, Lebanon, Lehigh, Lycoming, Mifflin, Monroe, Montgomery, Montour, Northampton, Northumberland, Perry, Schuylkill, Snyder, Union and York.

Designated as commercial corn producing areas are all of Illinois' 102 counties and all of Iowa's 99.

Principal Crop

Corn is Pennsylvania's principal crop. Last year the Commonwealth produced $104,017,000 worth of corn. This year the production was seriously hampered by a drought through July and August that was estimated to have reduced production to about 60 per cent of normal.

With 1,281,000 acres devoted to corn production, the Commonwealth ranks 20th among all the states. However, on yield, Pennsylvania farmers in a normal year turn out about 56 bushels per acre and in 1956 the state ranked number 13 for yield, production and dollar volume. Illinois and Iowa rank 1-2.

All-White

Among those who recently saw the all-white animal, with a brown forehead, were Mrs. G. E. Irvine and her son, Geoffrey. While driving on the Dingman Turnpike, they saw the unusual-colored animal grazing under some apple trees with four other doe and were able to bring their car within a distance of 10 feet. So unconcerned were the animals, they continued to munch apples for almost 10 minutes before ambling down the slope to the woods.

A further "natural history" note comes from Glenn Albright of Kingston, New York. While staying at his cottage near Albright's Corners this week, he enjoyed the spectacle of a mother bear and her three cubs ambling down the back road to Milford as calmly as if they were in the remotest wilderness. Only when he called to them did the mother bear give him a startled look and then quickly herd her young ones to the safety of the woods.

It was probably one of these same cubs that provided a thrill for the children in Harold Stetler's school bus when they saw the small bear along the road as they were returning from school one day last week.

New York Butter

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—USDA — Butter week. Receipts 200,000. Wholesale prices on bulk (butter) fresh. Creamery, 93 score (AAA) 61½-61½ cents; 92 score (AA) 61; 90 score (B) 60½-60½.

The picture, now nationally famous, had its origin with Lt. Col. James A. Bryant, divisional chaplain for the "Fighting Fourth" Armored Division in Normandy.

Already this picture hangs in over 2,000 churches across the United States where it has been dedicated in similar family rallies sponsored by the CHL.

Col. Bryant, now executive director for the Christian Home League, with headquarters in Syracuse, engaged Fred S. Bruner of Philadelphia to paint the picture as an emblem for the League's layment movement, which has now assumed national proportions. Late reports from the League's nation-wide front will also be given.

Rosemary Lobb College Queen

ROSEMARY LOBB, 21, Pen Argyl, a senior student at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, was named the first "homecoming queen" in ESSTC history yesterday.

Miss Lobb was crowned in a ceremony held last night at the campus auditorium by Dr. LeRoy J. Koehler, president of the college. She was chosen by the votes of members of the student body in an election held this week.

Contest

The homecoming queen contest was sponsored by the Men's Executive Council on campus. At last night's ceremony, Miss Lobb was congratulated by the other girls in the competition and by members of the faculty and advisers.

During today's football game the Queen will be presented to the audience "in style." She will be brought into the stadium in a new convertible loaned for the occasion by Ray Price Motor Co., Stroudsburg.

Miss Lobb and members of her court will serve as receptionists at tonight's homecoming dance in the campus gymnasium.

Resurgence Noted In Missions

(Continued from Page 2) mission, therefore, is like the renewal of courage and effort in the service of Christ, like the renewed confidence in His continued and efficient help and greater determination to be a perfect Christian—not in word, but in fact.

The mission in St. Matthew's Parish continues through next Sunday. During this coming week it will be held nightly at St. Luke's Church in Stroudsburg. Evening services are held each night at 7:30 and continue for one hour.

As a "technique," there is nothing "new" in missions. But the mission is being given new significance in today's "modern" world for a variety of reasons. Among these is the fact that, while church membership and attendance are at an all-time peak in America, there is a growing recognition that knowledge of religion is falling behind membership rolls.

The effort, therefore, in missions or revivals is to increase knowledge in the Word of God. That is the first "mission" such services have. And most religious authorities believe that it is job which calls for the most dynamic and persistent efforts they can possibly bring into play.

Teen-Age Dance Postponed

THE TEEN-AGE dance scheduled for tonight at St. Matthew's Auditorium has been cancelled due to the illness of many young people and because of the conflict with the Stroudsburg-Wilson football game.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Vichnicki, advisers, said the dances will be resumed next Saturday night.

Northampton Bids

HARRISBURG, Oct. 11 (AP)—The state Property and Supplies Department today received these bids on construction and repair projects in Northampton County: Heating repairs to the highways building at Easton; Keps Co., Easton, $3,994; roof repairs to the same building, Warren W. Snyder, Elizabethtown, $9,166.

Rally Day Slated For Grace Church

PLANS HAVE been made for the annual Rally Day observance of Grace Lutheran Church School, East Stroudsburg, for tomorrow at 9:45 a. m. during the sessions of the school.

Superintendent Joseph H. Small announced last night that John R. Wilson, executive secretary of the YMCA and superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School of Stroudsburg, had been secured as the Rally Day speaker.

During the chief service of the day at 11 a. m. in the sanctuary three new Charters will be presented to the Cub-Pack Scout Troop and Explorer Post No. 97, William Schiebel Scout Executive of the Delaware Valley Area Council (Pocono District), will make the presentations to the three units sponsored by Grace Church.

Gerald A. Snyder, Institutional Representative of Grace Church, will participate with Pastor William Wunder in the presentation ceremony. Edward Weber, Cubmaster; Herman Meinhardt, Scoutmaster; and Jesse E. Kulp, Explorer Post leader, will each represent his respective unit and also serve as ushers for the service. All Cubs, Scouts and Explorers and committees and personnel of each unit will attend the service in a group.

Sermon

Pastor Wunder's sermon theme will be "A Reversal of Conditions" based on the gospel for the 17th Sunday after Trinity from Luke 14:1-11.

Altar flowers will be placed by Mrs. Annie Loyd and Mrs. Stella Nace in memory of husband and father, Howard F. Loyd. Chancel flowers at the base of the Cross will be placed in memory of Roland C. Holland by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Holland.

Vesper Service will be held at 7:00 p. m. on Sunday in St. Paul's Lutheran Church on Smithfield, Craggs Meadows, with Pastor Wunder officiating. Sunday School will be held at 10 a. m. with Raymond LaBar and Mrs. Aaron Smith, Sr., superintendents, in charge.

Bulletins will be presented by Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Michaels.
